

- Phuc's 1st scenario: What if dinosaurs never went extinct?
 - T: human will train dinosaurs as a type of vehicle.
 - E: humans will attempt to domesticate them
 - Artifact: cute lil dino sitting in the living room
 - P: Florida would have dinosaur hunting season annually.
 - Artifact: "keys" or "status objects" of owning rare dinosaurs/modified dinosaurs vehicles.
- Phuc's 2nd scenario: What if soap is edible?
 - E: we would all have nice smelling breaths
 - T: we could blow bubbles out of our mouth (bubbles fly everywhere)
 - Artifact: a bar of soap made to look edible; it'll be more enticing to eat
 - P: The sewage system would be smelling like soap.
- Eliz's 1st scenario: What if pangeaea didn't break up and stayed as a supercontinent?
 - P: Columbus would have never landed on America and starved on the ocean.
 - T: majority languages will die, till there is only one left
 - Artifact: since different culture's won't exist, there would only be 1. So an artifact could be a flag that represents this entire supercontinent
 - E: there would be less boat transportation
- Eliz's 2nd scenario: What if we were given "extra lives"?
 - T: if it is multiple like Edge of tomorrow and people can gain lives from killing others, people would go crazy killing each other.
 - Artifact: a watch indicates the number of lives.
 - P: one group of people would have a contest of whoever can use up the most lives count; the other group would talk about how they haven't used much lives count.
 - E: people would take more risks
 - Artifact: could be a badge that represents a "life"; the more badges you have the more lives you have
- Thong's 1st scenario: What happens if there is a person who can control zombies/undead?
 - P: that person would have zombies do all of their works.
 - E: people would ask that person to bring their loved ones back
 - T: Countries will hunt him down for military purposes.
 - Artifact: necromancer's staff, accessories (skull, book, ring, ...)
- Thong's 2nd scenario: What if we live between a world and a mirror world (kinda near the line that crosses two worlds)?
 - E: people would want to break through and go to one side
 - P: Most people wouldn't be able to experience the second world since only the ultra rich can afford the trip up there.
 - T: People would avoid meeting their doppelganger because once they meet, one of them has to die.